(mawson lecture, 1981)1 bruce runnegar department of geology, university of new england, armidale, n.s.w. 2351. abstract the abrupt appearance of animal fossils at the end of the precambrian can be explained in two ways—either as the initial explosion of animal life, or as the questions about the cambrian explosion - ediacaran fossils bear any ancestral relation to cambrian fauna, stating that "the relations of any of these fossils to cambrian bilaterians remains uncertain and awaits further collecting and critical analysis."9 most evolutionary scientists thus do not believe that the ediacaran fossils solve "darwin's dilemma." cambrian explosion of life: the big bang in metazoan evolution - fossils known. salient features of the cambrian explosion the animals of the cambrian explosion represent unusual evo-lutionary mileposts. the explosion commenced around 530 ma ago and ended around 520 ma ago. the 10 ma interval was marked by abundant mineralized hard parts (composed chiefly of CaCO_3) in the fossil record. several phyla level ... cambrian and precambrian rocks of the groom district ... - cambrian and precambrian rocks of the groom district, nevada, southern great basin by harley barnes and robert l. christiansen abstract more than 14,000 feet of conformable cambrian and precambrian rocks is exposed in the groom district in southwestern lincoln county, nev. the lower the cambrian explosion: how much bang for the buck? - issue regarding fossils for his comprehensive explanation for the history of life. the problem was this: the base of the cambrian period, originally defined by adam sedgwick, was signified by the presence of trilobites, as well as other macroscopic fossils such as linguliform brachiopods and some strange echino-derms. these exotic and ... some middle cambrian fossils of utah - taylor & francis - of cambrian rocks found in some of the eighty cambrian formations that have been recognized in utah. cambrian fossils in particular are mentioned because they are among the earliest life forms that have left us a good record. geologic history the cambrian began approximately 570 million years perspectives on the cambrian explosion - cambrian considerably lengthens the duration of the cambrian, adding 13 million years below the diverse skeletonized fossils of the explosion. during this earliest cambrian time, trace fossils form the chief evidence of metazoan life, harbingers of the coming explosion (fig. 1). beginning with t. pedum, the traces document an increase in three cambrian fossils assembled into an extinct body plan ... - cambrian (635–484 mya), during which metazoans underwent a dramatic diversification. therefore, deciphering fossil problematica from this crucial interval of evolution might provide pivotal insights into the origin and early radiation of metazoan body plans (1). clarifying the anatomy and phylogenetic placement of some of
